Judge Stewart remarked that he appreciated the fact that any imprisonment whatever is a terrible ordeal for any man of the education, refinement and previous good character of the defendant, and therefore he was not disposed to be severe with Van Kuran. The court then decreed that the defendant be imprisoned for two and a half years. The minimum penaity is one year and the maximum ten years. Insmediately after sentence was pronounced Judge Powers asked for and was granted sixty days in which to prepare a bill of exceptions on appeal. The court stenographer was directed to transcribe the evidence at the expense of the state, so that the case can be appealed on the motion for a new trial.

The trial of the assault case against Joseph Bridge was concluded just before uoor yesterday in the criminal court. After the opening of court the prosecution rested its case by recalling Andrew Galland, one of the young men who swore he saw the defendant commit the crime upon little Filen Lucile Budd near the Jordan river on July 21. The defense offered no testimony, but Judge Wenger made a plea for his client, maintaining the absurdity of the charge.

At 11:45 the jury retired to deliberate upon a verdict, but at 8 o'clock in the evening they had been unable to agree and Judge Stewart ordered the jurors for be locked up for the night. It was learned that five of the jurors favored a verdict of assault with intent to commit the crime, while the other three stood for a verdict finding the defendant guilty of the higher crime.

The annual report was not given out. It will probably be issued soon. The report will show a prosperous year for the Short Line system. Passenger and freight traffic have been remarkably heavy, a particularly fine showing being made in the ore and coal business. From practically nothing, the coal traffic has been worked up until it now forms about 60 per cent of the entire freight traffic of the road. The opening of new mines and the increase of output in the older properties has auded immensely to the ore business.

The year has seen the inaguration of two important extensions, which are expected to increase largely the earnings of the road. The less important of the two, the Salmon river branch, has been practically completed, and the eighty-six and one-half miles of road between Blackfoot, Ida., and Mackay will be in regular operation within a couple of weeks.

The initial step in the California extension was the purchase of the Utah & Pacific, extending from Milford to Uvada, and the prosecution of work across Nevada. The history of this deal will be rehearsed in the report, together with other features in the proposed extension.
